

Cord blood banking is an option for parents who want to preserve the blood of the umbilical cord and placenta of their baby as "insurance" to help with possible future medical needs of their child. It can also be used for other biologically matched children, either in their own family or in the general public.

There are numerous cord blood companies to pick from on the market. Viacord and CBR are the two private cord blood banks that we recommend, however, you are free to utilize any cord blood bank you like.

Are you thinking about banking your baby's cord blood? There are live interactive virtual classes led by either an OBGYN provider or a nurse that can help you learn more:
